McELROY ABDUCTOR SENTENCED TO DIE

McGee Given Death Sentence by Jury; Probe Massachusetts Case

(By Associated Press)

The law pointed today to a tenstrike against kidnaping-the first death sentence in an abduction case -but two victims of kidnapers still were missing, with authorities apparently at a dead end.

O'Connell, Urschel Missing Three weeks ago today the young national guard lieutenant, John J, Q'Connell, Jr., of Albany, N. Y., was bducted. He is still unaccounted for. The other man still unreturned is Charles F. Urschel wealthy Oklahoma City oil man. His wife was reported today near collapse, all efforts at negotiations for his release having been unsuccessful.

The ransom demand in the case of O'Connell originally was a quarter of a million dollars. Subsequent negotiations may have reduced it but members of the young man's family have not been communicative, and authorities confess themselves balked.

On the heels of the imposition of the death sentence upon Walter McGee for the kidnaping of Mary McElrov in Kansas City, the prose cution announced it would seek the same extreme penalty for McGee brother, George, and for Clarence Click, held in the same kidnaping

THE NATION'S NEW ENERGY Behind the palpable facts of recovery is a sweeping conversion of latent energy to actual energy. For four years the nation's momentum had been decreasing perceptibly. Lest March it reached a minimum

It is the greatest of many which are being applied in many widely separated parts of the country Each one helps to put more men back to work to increase buying power and to get money into circulation. Together, they contribute hugely to the momentum of national activity. This is exactly the same thing that has happened after every depression. The difference lies in the fact that recovery from other depressions occurred without any assistance from a plan and without the people being made conscious of lines and get meager returns.

Atlanta Journal. that they were participating in any

Thus, it may be said that the only novelty of the exciting things happening on every side today i the people's unaccustomed participation in the processes of recovery. Realization of that participation has made them conscious of their energy. If some of them are frightened by the possibilities of what is being done, it is possible that their real concern arises from surprise that they seem to be able to do things which no nation ever consciously did before. Actually, it is little more than all people have done upon emergence from a depression.

APPREHENSION

It was inevitable that there would be apprehension concerning the dangers of the industrial re covery program. Now that the program is taking on definite shape, the form of that apprehension is resolving itself into a new factor with which recovery administrator must deal.

The simplest description is that of an uncomfortable fear concerning administration's capability of applying a general rule in such a way that there will be a minimum of unfairness in regard to special cases. Can the general objective of higher wages and shorter hours be attained by all units of industy and business?

In this connection it should be remembered that the administration's first purpose was to start the 10 major industries toward the objective. It has been within the last fortnight that attention was diverted from that purpose to the broader one of applying a general code that would cause all units to comply with the program. To realize the benefits of such a code, the administration has called into play the force of popular opinion. Specifically, apprehension is concerned with the demonstrable impossiblty of controlling popular opnion when it is regimented for such a purpose. Americans still have too many of the traits of witch-burners to be turned loos under pressure of excitement

The variations and complexitien of modern industry are too num erous to be dealt with by general rules. No sensible person can doubt that there is a world of difference between, say, the steel industry and the modest enterprise of a corne drug store proprietor. Yet, unless elaborate precautions are taken public opinion will measure them by the same standards.

Obviously, it is a physical impos sibility for the administrators of the recovery act to comprehend the peculiar problems of the small entrepreneur. Fully as obviously, the will do him a great injustice if they permit him to be the victim of a boycott because he is unable to do the same things which a powerful industry is able to do. There needs to be a clear definition of policy on this point. Willingness to cooperate in the recovery program is obscure in many cases. Having emphasized the general rule, in-

THE NATION'S NEW ENERGY RURAL GANG MENACE

Karl Detzer, an official of the same tenergy to actual energy. For four years the nation's momentum had been decreasing perceptibly. Lest March it reached a minimum.

Then it started to pick up, and is sent and in his report on the subject he says that gangsters try folks at least $25,000,000 a year. still increasing

The tremendous market for autowere able to show by statistics that ing given.

It is the greatest of many which are being applied in many widely separated parts of the country. Each one helps to put more men back to work to increase buying power and to get money into circulation. Together, they contribute hugely to the momentum of national activity

This is exactly the same thing that has happened after every depression. The difference lies in the fact that recovery from other depressions occurred without any assistance from a plan and without poets and fishermen put out a lot of lines and get meager returns.—Atlanta Journal. that they were participating in any

Thus, it may be said that only novelty of the exciting things happening on every side today is people's unaccustomed participation in the processes of recovery. Realization of that participation has made them conscious of their energy. If some of them are frightened by the possibilities of what is being done, it is possible that their real concern arises from surprise that they seem to be able to do things which no nation ever consciously did before. Actually, it is little more than all people have done upon emergence from a de pression.

APPREHENSION

It was inevitable that there would be apprehension concerning the dangers of the industrial recovery program. Now that the program is taking on definite shape the form of that apprehension is resolving itself into a new factor with which recovery administrators must deal.

The simplest description is that of an uncomfortable fear concerning administration's capability of applying a general rule in such a way that there will be a minimum of unfairness in regard to specia cases. Can the general objective of higher wages and shorter hours be attained by all units of indust and business?

In this connection it should be remembered that the administration's first purpose was to start the 10 major industries toward the objective. It has been within the last fortnight that attention was diverted from that purpose to the broader one of applying a general code that would cause all units to comply with the program.

To realize the benefits of such a code, the administration has called into play the force of popular opinion. Specifically, apprehension is concerned with the demonstrable impossiblty of controlling popular opnion when it is regimented for such a purpose. Americans still have too many of the traits of witch-burners to be turned loos under pressure of excitement.

The variations and complexitie of modern industry are too num erous to be dealt with by general rules. No sensible person can doubt that there is a world of difference between, say, the steel industry and the modest enterprise of a corne drug store proprietor. Yet, unles elaborate precautions are taken public opinion will measure ther by the same standards.

Obviously, it is a physical impo sibility for the administrators of the recovery act to comprehend the peculiar problems of the small entrepreneur. Fully as obviously, they will do him a great injustice if the permit him to be the victim of boycott because he is unable to de the same things which a powerfu industry is able to do. There need to be a clear definition of policy on this point. Willingness to conue, Chicago.

A BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY This property is located on the corner of West State St. and Howard Ave. It is improved with a two-story, 8-room house and a large store room. House is all modern except furnace. Has twocar garage. Good, deep lot, running from State St. back to alley in the rear which makes it very valuable. However, this is an estate and must be sold. For that reason, the owners have priced it very cheap. See me for further particulars.
